

Charlotte Arts!

Arts & Humanities Council of Charlotte County

October 27, 2017 issue

The Charlotte Arts website also lists member events on its cultural calendar.

The next issue will be released in two weeks on Friday, November 10. The online calendar is updated then too.

Charlotte Arts Members: By Noon on Wednesday, November 8 please send announcement for the next issue to info@CharlotteArts.org.

The Arts & Humanities Council of Charlotte County -- Charlotte Arts -- is Charlotte County's only "united arts" agency. Charlotte Arts celebrates and supports all artists -- visual arts, performing arts, and humanities -- as well as cultural organizations and businesses.

These issues, sent every-other-Friday, will focus on events and classes that will be in held in the next two weeks.

Please visit Charlotte Arts website at www.CharlotteArts.org to learn about:

- Art News
- Call to Artists for juried shows, plays, musicians and more,
- Cafe Philo
- Charlotte Arts artist of the month.

These sections will usually be updated every other Friday. (With this issue, they will be posted by Monday.)

Check out the online cultural calendar for classes offered after November 10.

Email us at info@CharlotteArts.org if you have suggestions that will make these issues more useful to you.

Thank you for your support of arts and humanities in Charlotte County.

Thank You

The library is holding a reception for Toni McNulty whose work is on exhibit as part of the Arts and Humanities Council of Charlotte County Art in Public Places program. The reception includes music by a harpist and Coach Potato, a collage by John "Dedo" Cristina.

Dedo has created body masks and photography props for couture runway shows in Naples, Fort Myers and St. Petersburg, where his continuing fascination with body and face casting began. Currently he focuses on reverse collages in which figurative abstract images are filled with text and patterns from print media. Most of Dedo's art is sold directly thru small business events. A book of his work, Dedo The Art of John Cristina, was published by Book-Broker Publishers of Florida in 2016.

Kathy Wood's one-of-a-kind art journals are driven by her passion for old paper, antique photos, dated postcards and long-forgotten letters from loved ones during an era when beautiful penmanship was prized. Wood incorporates an array of rediscovered vintage items - each with a story to tell - into her journals among blank pages that have been coffee-stained and dyed for an aged appearance. Wood believes penmanship is becoming a lost art and hopes her unique journals will inspire others to put pen to paper.
